Tribe sponsors casino job fair

Ashley Lawrence
Staff Writer

The Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians sponsored a jobs fair at the Best Western in Romulus Monday to allow Romulus residents a first look at future jobs that will be available if a proposed casino comes to the city.

"We want to tell the people of Romulus about what they can expect from the casino," said Jason Pasko, controller of Greektown Casino in Detroit. "Residents have questions, as any good voter should and we are here to answer them and at the same time allow them to apply for a job at the casino."

Dave and Carol Fletcher, a retired couple and 34-year residents of Romulus, came out to the jobs fair to look into part-time jobs.

"I don't just want to sit and watch my grass grow," said Dave Fletcher. "I think it would be great to get a job with this casino. It doesn't really matter what I would be doing, just something."

The Fletchers said they are for the casino for a number of reasons, but the most important being what it would do for the City of Romulus.

"I think it will give this city some class," said Fletcher. "It will put smiles on people's faces here. They would be happy with jobs that pay $10 to $12 an hour, just so people could have a job to go to."

Prospective employees applied for a variety of open positions with the proposed casino. Everything from maintenance, banker, driver, hotel staff, management and baker is available, according to Jill Hanna, general ledger accountant at Greektown Casino.

"All of these jobs are open right now," said Pasko. "The management jobs, everything and people can't forget about the outside services that the casino requires to operate."

Pam Kulczyk, a Romulus resident applied for a job as a pastry chef.

"I want to get a job closer to home," she said.

Kulczyk is currently employed at a large bakery in downtown Northville, but she said she would like to work in this area.

"It think this casino will bring in a lot of people," she said. "I can see people coming here during their lay-off time at the airport."

Brandon Reed, a 21-year old student studying to be an electronic computer technician, applied for a job as a maintenance technician with the casino.

"It is better pay and I will be able to improve my skills," said Reed. "It will also bring a lot of jobs to the city, which it really needs right now."

Dave and Carol Fletcher attended the casino jobs fair and completed applications, Monday at the Best Western Hotel in Romulus. The retired couple is looking for work to fill their time and thought it would be fun to work for the proposed casino.

Racetrack officials bank on positive vote outcome

Scott Spielman
Editor

When residents of the City of Romulus head to the polls next Tuesday, they'll be voting on more than just a proposed racetrack and casino.

Officials from Magna Entertainment, who plan a 200-acre development that includes a racetrack and clubhouse and, ultimately, a regional retail center and movie theater, said residents will have a chance to decide the makeup of the community.

Lorne Kumer, vice president of real estate for Magna, said that his firm is already committed to the community. The firm has already purchased the site for the proposed track - at a cost of $28 million - and put more than $1 million into design and engineering for the site.

Still, he said his company is faced with a serious obstacles to overcome as they try to promote their development.

"People's notions of what a race track is are not good," he said. "They're worn out. They might have some history, but they're not inviting to come to."

He said the Magna proposal was different, however. The first phase of it will represent a $125 million investment in the community. The clubhouse will feature timeless architecture, a hi-tech stage that can feature concerts and other performances, a 1,000-seat restaurant and more. A 7-acre parcel will be set aside for families, with playscapes and picnic tables, that will be accessible without walking through the gambling portion of the site.

"We're trying to attract people there for other reasons," Kumer said. "You could spend an entire evening there without even betting on a horse race."

The first phase of development also includes a 33,000 square foot research and development facility that can be expanded to 66,000 square feet. It will house the headquarters of Magna International, a major supplier of automotive parts that employs 73,000 people in 198 plants around the world. Started in the 1950s as a tool and die company, it now generates $12 billion in sales every year.

"Magna isn't just the developer, it's the user," Kumer said. "When we build it, we operate it."

The company owns 15 racetracks around the country, and wants to bring the industry back to its glory days, said Kumer. He said the facility would sponsor major new racing events that would bring thousand of people to the community and recognition to the community, too.

"It'll be a place where the finest horses want to race," he said. "It'll bring people to the community."

Councilman pushes for new animal shelter

Ashley Lawrence

In this day of social awareness regarding the humane treatment of animals, it is unbelievable to Romulus City Councilman William Wadsworth that any animal should be housed in the existing animal shelter in Romulus.

"We are trying to get the animals out of this dungeon," he said. "This building is ridiculous. We need to do something to help these animals."

The original building, which was built sometime before World War II and renovated in the 1950s, is not what he said an animal shelter should look like for the animals or the people who work there.

The small building sits on the corner of Wayne and Goddard in full view of all residents. Many residents are not aware that this building is not even equipped with toilet facilities for employees.

"We have to go across the street to Burger King whenever we have to use the bathroom," said Animal Control Officer Kim Matthews. "It is not the most convenient thing in the world, but we have to make do with what we have."

The shelter, which processes more than 2,000 animals each year, isn't even equipped to deal with that number. Each year more than 900 animals are put to death because the shelter does not have

Racetrack reality different in Fruit Port

Ashley Lawrence
Staff Writer

Voters will determine the future of the City of Romulus next week when they go to the polls to decide on whether a casino and a racetrack should come to their community.

The $100 million racetrack development is proposed by Magna Entertainment Corp. and the developers have projected that $1 million in breakage fees would come to the city each year from the track.

According to Connie Smith, Fruit Port Charter Township supervisor, however, estimated breakage revenue is just that, an estimate.

Fruit Port is home to Great Lakes Downs, the other racetrack Magna owns and operates in Michigan. Magna took over Great Lakes Downs in January of 1999 and at that time, according to Smith, the estimate for breakage money was about $250,000.

Last year, Fruit Port brought in only $74,895 in breakage money from the racetrack. The year before, $75,059, much less than projected revenues the township and Muskegon County expected to receive.

"We don't really make any money from the racetrack," she said. "The picture that was brought before the township certainly has not become a reality."

Since Great Lakes Downs began operations under Magna, large-scale developers have come into the community to build, but Smith said she does not credit the racetrack for that.

"We have had a huge influx of commercial developers in our community in the past few years," she said. "But I think that had to do with the building of Lakes Mall in 2001, it was not facilitated by the racetrack at all."

Smith said she doesn't know why the racetrack has failed in Fruit Port. "Maybe it is our location, maybe it is that our 12,500 residents don't go to the racetrack, maybe it will fair better in Romulus. I don't know."

Smith said the situation could be quite different in other communities.

Romulus Animal Control Officer Annie Hall said she is hopeful that something will be done to better the Romulus Animal Shelter. Hall is holding one of the 2,000 animals a year housed at the shelter.

the room to keep them and is not able to find homes for them.

"We do everything we can to get these animals into good homes," she said. "But sometimes that is just not a possibility. That is very sad."

Animals at the shelter can be adopted for a $5 adoption fee and a $25 deposit that is returned with proof that the animal has been spayed or neutered.

The shelter has only 18 small dog cages and that is often too few, especially in the summer, which Matthews said is the busiest time of year.

The animals sleep on cold cement floors, unless rugs or blankets are donated from the community. All of the food for animals is donated. Just about everything in the shelter has been donated, including the dog-themed wallpaper.

"We are trying to get the word out that this city needs a new home for its animals," said Wadsworth. "Animals shouldn't have to live like this."

The two animal control officers, Matthews and Annie Hall, said they do their best for the homeless animals.

"We do everything we can, but we can't do everything," said Matthews. "We can't even afford to have a vet come in when an animal is hurt or sick."

A local veterinarian has, on occasion, offered to come and examine animals free of charge and this is the type of generosity the shelter counts on to keep the animals healthy enough to be adopted. Now, with the help of Wadsworth, they are asking the community to help them give the animals a better home.

Starting last year in January, Wadsworth has been leading the way to get funds together to build a new animal shelter.

"I am doing this because I am an animal lover," he said. "This is a cause I feel strongly about and there are many more, but this is right now."

Wadsworth said that the estimate for a new shelter would be about $250,000 to $300,000. Prior to Sept. 11, funds had already been set aside to pay for a new animal shelter, but with the addition of Homeland Security to every municipal budget, those funds disappeared fast.

"Mayor Alan Lambert is still trying to find grants to help build this shelter," said Wadsworth.

However, Wadsworth took the matter into his own hands. On Jan. 8, 2003, Wadsworth introduced a resolution before the Romulus City Council which would allow him to create the "Friends for the new Romulus Animal Shelter" account at city hall. This account is set up so that anyone can make a tax-free contribution to the fund.

"A lot of people want to help raise money for a new shelter," said Wadsworth. "Seventy percent of the money raised has come from local residents. The more help the better."

To make a tax-free donation to the Friends of the new Romulus Animal Shelter, send contributions to Romulus City Hall - Treasurer's Office, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, MI 48174.

Students at Romulus Middle School and Romulus High School helped make a difference in the lives of those less fortunate last month during the National Make A Difference Day.

On this single day, nationally, school children create crafts and deliver them to homes for the elderly, proms are organized for senior citizens, community members knit hats and booties for new babies and teenagers collect hats for children with hair loss due to cancer treatments.

Students in Romulus decided for the third straight year to host a baby shower with all donations going to Helping Hands, a local organization that services Romulus residents in need.

"The students wanted to do something that would truly help people in their own community," said Phyllis Wilkerson, the life management teacher at Romulus High School. "Services Helping Hands is something that stays in our community and makes the students feel good about what they are doing."

The baby shower took place at the Romulus High School. All who attended the shower were asked to bring one unwrapped baby item, which was to be donated to Helping Hands.

"We were so happy with the turn out this year," said Wilkerson. "More than 70 people came to make donations and enjoy the baby shower."

The shower was arranged by students in grades 10 through 12.

"The nutrition class got involved and decided to make cakes for the shower," she said. "What is a baby shower without a cake?"

Students from Romulus Middle School life management classes, taught by Betty Santos, also assisted in the planning of the shower by creating party favors.

Now, the students from the parenting class are in the process of putting together gift packages that will be brought to Helping Hands in the next few weeks, just in time for Christmas.

ject is just as important to the developers, he said. After the first phase is complete and in operation, he said the company would periodically test the market to determine the best time to construct the retail and commercial component of the plan.

That includes about 700,000 square feet of space in a mixed use development, according to Kumer. Of that, 270,000 square feet would be set aside for retail uses, another 54,000 square feet for restaurants, 100,000 square feet would be office space and 100,000 square feet would be a multi-screen movie theater. There would be living space in the plan.

When both phases of the project are complete, the company will have invested $325 million in Romulus and will contribute about $70 million to the city in taxes, along with about $1 million from racetrack revenue.

"We think the racetrack will be a catalyst for the city," Kumer said.

Public comment sought by city

The City of Romulus is interested in public comments regarding a request for Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) funding for a Brownfield Grant. The city will be submitting an application for a $200,000 cleanup grant for property located at the southwest corner of Wick and Shook Roads.

The property, once restored, will be utilized as greenspace for recreational purposes.

Additional budget cuts threatened by governor

Scott Spielman
Editor

Officials in the City of Wayne are bracing for another round of potential budget cuts caused by another possible cut in state shared revenue.

A fax alert the city recently received from the Michigan Municipal League said the governor may issue an executive order slashing state shared revenue by as much as 20 percent, according to City Manager John Zech.

That would mean the city budget would take a $350,000 reduction, halfway through the budget year. The city only has a $500,000 fund balance.

"It's an astounding amount of cuts," said Councilman Tom Kelly. "It's mind boggling. It leads me to believe that they just pulled the number out of the air."

Zech said if that prediction came to pass, it would be devastating for the city. He said that plenty of other municipalities are in the same position. He attended a funding rally recently in Hazel Park, which was attended by hundreds of municipal workers, police officers and firefighters, as well as citizens and elected officials, all of whom had the same message for the state government.

"The message from all the speakers was this: the Governor and the state legislature cannot cut revenue sharing any further without causing very serious reductions of municipal services throughout Michigan, such as police, fire, rescue, road maintenance and repair, snow and ice removal, water and sewer, senior services and recreation and park services," Zech said.

Wayne Mayor Al Haidous said he was frustrated by the situation. He and other officials are trying to build up the City of Wayne, and he said it's difficult when the funds are continually in short supply. He said he didn't think, though, that the cuts would be the 29 percent threatened last week.

"It's a bargaining point," he said. "They say 28 percent and then they'll cut 14 percent, and you'll be happy because it's not 28 percent."

Haidous' prediction from last week may be true. Zech said he received word more recently that the state may only reduce state shared revenue by 12 percent. That would be a reduction of about $85,000 for the city.

"I can work with that," he said, "but it's not going to be pretty."

Reduction in state shared revenue is one of the things the state legislature is forced to look at as they try to cope with a $900 million budget deficit, he said. A freeze on a proposed lower income tax is also part of the plan, but that won't have a significant enough impact to stop the bleeding, he said. He said he knows some type of revenue sharing cut is on the way, though.

"There's no way we're going to escape (the $900 million deficit), that I can see, without some kind of cut," he said. "We just feel like we've had too much, already."

Homeland security still a priority with area officials

Theresa Wherrett
Staff Writer

Would you know what to do if the area was struck with a crisis, such as a natural disaster or terrorist attack?

"Right now is the time to seek information," said Inkster Police Chief Marvin Winkler, during a Homeland Security meeting Monday night. "Not when the lights are out or things are jammed. Have a plan and practice it with your family."

The blackout last summer, Y2K and Sept. 11 may be thought of as training sessions for what to do if another emergency hits the metro area.

"Y2K forced us to do a lot of things we hadn't done before and plan for equipment we hadn't had before," said Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard. "September 11 made us take a good look at homeland security. Those two things, plus the blackout, helped us to learn where we are and what are some of the things we need to do."

Most cities have had emergency management plans in place to handle problems such as tornadoes or flooding, said Wayne County Executive Robert Ficano. What became obvious, particularly after Sept. 11, is that such emergency management programs are largely reactive, waiting for a disaster to happen. The year-old Homeland Security office is proactive, focused on preparing the community and reducing possible threat to public safety.

"Homeland Security is about anticipation," said Mark Snelson of the Wayne County Department of Homeland Security/Emergency Management (DHSEM). "Our role is to get information to the public and make sure they're just as prepared as the government."

On Oct. 1, the DHSEM issued $1.6 million in equipment to local communities, for radiological detection, tactical support, decontamination and communication, among other uses.

"We can't hoard equipment at our office," said Snelson. "It would take too long to get the equipment out if it were needed. We've issued everything out to the field."

We are subject to a regional approach. It is a priority in Wayne County that we have interoperability. Our systems need to talk to each other. If police and emergency personnel can't talk to each other, we will have people wandering into dangerous areas.

Mark Snelson

Snelson also submitted a grant request this week for $12.2 million, to be used in Detroit and Wayne County for security measures. There is also $62.4 million available in federal funds for the State of Michigan. The next phase of grant funding for Wayne County will be to seek part of the $62.4 million.

"We are subject to a regional approach," said Snelson. "It is a priority in Wayne County that we have interoperability. Our systems need to talk to each other. If police and emergency personnel can't talk to each other, we will have people wandering into dangerous areas." Other parameters for funds include prevention and reduction measures for weapons of mass destruction, and support for those emergency personnel first on the scene.

Citizens should prepare themselves as well. "If something happens, stay where you are," advised Westland Police Chief Daniel Pfannes. "Leave the kids at school. They're safe there. If everyone goes out in the streets, we won't be able to get the emergency vehicles out. We will give information to the public about what they should do."

Citizens are advised to keep a battery-operated radio to tune in to news broadcasts. The official broadcast system for this area is WJR (AM 760). Additionally, Westland residents can find information on AM 1700.

"If we need to, we will have police and fire go around and knock on doors," said Westland Mayor Sandra Cicirelli.

The public should also keep certain items on hand at home, such as a first aid kit, and should have an emergency plan thought out.

"We all need to be good like good Boy Scouts - we need to be prepared," said Beard. "It's important to talk about this with your friends and neighbors, and particularly with your own family."

Tips for being better prepared

Know the location of your utilities and how to turn them off if necessary.

Keep a first aid kit accessible and have an ample supply of necessary medications.

Have a battery-operated radio and extra batteries on hand for listening to emergency broadcast stations.

Keep extra batteries readily available.

Keep cash on hand.

Have candles and flashlights available for emergency lighting.

Know how to contact family members at all times.

Have a three-day supply of food and water available at all times, including in your automobile.

Keep toiletries and paper toweling ready to travel.

Keep your gas tank filled.

Contact your children's school to determine their emergency notification and evacuation plans for students.

Be familiar with evacuation routes from your place of work.

Have a planned evacuation route from your city.

Have a designated location to meet family members.

Be aware of emergency phone numbers. Call your local police and fire departments for further instruction.

Like a good neighbor

When a major company like the Ford Motor Co. decides to invest more than $400 million in a community, it's pretty clearly a good thing.

Sure enough, when the news broke recently that the automaker would put that kind of money into the Wayne plants, it was greeted with joy from city officials, nearby business owners and city officials, alike.

State lawmakers hailed it as a reverse of two trends: the loss of manufacturing jobs in the State of Michigan and the willingness of large corporations to boost profits by using cheaper labor in other countries.

Employees most likely hailed the news as a major point in job security.

In fact, the announcement represents a coup for members of the United Autoworkers Union, which made the reclamation of jobs that had gone to other countries a major point in their negotiations, nationwide. Jeff Washington, head of UAW Local 900, which includes all three Wayne plants, said the announcement came as a relief to workers, and that Ron Gettelfinger, president of the UAW and Gerald Bennett, vice president of the Ford division of the UAW, should be commended for their work in making that a reality.

City officials welcomed it because it provides for the long-term stability of the City of Wayne.

In fact, it puts the city in an enviable position.

It provides the perfect anchor for business recruitment. And while that can be a good thing, it could have a down side, as well. It could give officials an excuse to be too selective in their efforts to revitalize the city.

This is something that, in a way, is inevitable, at least in appearance. There are always business owners who claim that a city or township has slowed down their project because of an appearance of controversy, while others are put on the fast track. Owners of bars, nightclubs and other places that serve alcohol tend to top that list, but it could be anyone, anywhere.

It's something that city officials can't afford, even though they're sitting in the proverbial cat-bird seat.

The investment of Ford Motor into the community is certainly a good thing. City officials should take full advantage of it as they try to attract more, large and diverse firms into the city.

Checks don't balance schedules

There are some government decisions that are guaranteed to spark some form of controversy.

The nature of politics – and the nature of citizenry – virtually guarantees that some decisions will not make everyone happy.

The most controversial and contentious of those, of course, are the ones that seem so self-serving, like decisions on pay increases.

Officials in Plymouth Township found that out last week, when they couldn't get the two-thirds majority needed to reject a proposed pay increase.

Many may speculate that the only reason they couldn't is because Trustee Abe Munfakh was out of town when the board voted on it Nov. 18, and that most likely is true.

The full-time elected officials – the supervisor, treasurer and clerk – were granted a 2-percent pay increase this year and a 2.5 percent increase next year. Supervisor Steve Mann was the only full time elected official who voted against the increase.

The increases themselves are relatively small. In fact they barely cover the increase in inflation, which is itself at virtually an all-time low. Board members thought, though, that it sent the wrong message at a time when many municipalities are scrambling to cover their own

Mark your calendars now

The bulk of the citizenry can usually take a deep breath after the election season and go about their daily lives.

They can do that because they've already made their choices and cast their ballots; the candidates they either supported or opposed have won or lost, and there's some breathing room until the next election cycle.

Unless, of course, you're one of those people elected to office. Many times for them, the weeks just after the election are just as tense as the ones leading up to them. In some communities, like the City of Plymouth, there's a new mayor to appoint. In others, like the City of Wayne, the mayor is elected and the appointment goes to the mayor pro tem. And no matter how it looks on television or in the meeting rooms, these choices are often not as quick and painless as they appear. They are usually already decided through phone calls, emails and personal appeals before the official day.

I didn't know what to expect at the first post election meeting in Wayne, since it's the first time I covered an election. In Plymouth, everyone on the commission has chance to say a few parting words to the outgoing commissioners and give them gifts – Mayor Pro Tem Colleen Pobur was the proud recipient of two pairs of baby pajamas, one blue and one pink, each emblazoned with the city seal for the imminent arrival of her twins.

I was hoping for a chance to wish Wayne Councilman Bob Dickerson well, but that wasn't meant to be.

There were other differences between the two changing of the guards, as well. In Plymouth, a 35th District Court judge presides over the swearing in ceremony, and makes sure the incoming commissioners sign where they need to sign. In Wayne, friends and family of the elected officials took the oath of office from the newcomers and those returning to office.

I wasn't sure what to expect from the vote for the mayor pro tem, but I was relatively certain that everyone would show up for it.

Again, that wasn't meant to be. Donna McEachern wasn't there. She was out of town for 'personal reasons,' which she knew about enough in advance to tell people interested in the Wayne Rotary parade to call Tom Lynch about it two weeks before the event, because she would be out of town.

I may be wrong, but it seems like a case of bad planning to me. I mean, this is the one meeting that always takes place at the same time, every two years. It's where new council members are sworn in, and a mayor pro tem is chosen.

Granted, it's mostly a ceremonial occasion, but I still think it's important for sitting council members to officially welcome anyone new to the council. It's also the only time that a mayor pro tem can be selected, and when one council member is absent, it sets up the possibility for a three-three tie and sets the stage for a protracted and possibly embarrassing discussion of who is better suited for the job.

Again, the mayor pro tem is a largely ceremonial position. The only real power is to preside over meetings when the mayor is absent. It may give added weight when meeting with officials from other municipalities, or business owners who want to move into the city. Other than that, it's just another vote. You'd have to question someone unwilling to give up the post or support someone they know won't do as good a job as another member of the council.

The council should all be there for the vote, though, no matter what type of politicking goes on beforehand. So consider this a request for the sitting city council. Two years from now, after another election, there will be a meeting to welcome the incoming members to the dais and to vote for a new mayor pro tem. Clear your schedules.

Racetrack gets neighbor's support

To the editor;

Although I do not live in Romulus, I do want to offer my support of a new racetrack in your city. I live in Livonia and when I travel to other cities I always visit local tracks.

I know some people have said "All the money will go to Canada," but as far as I am concerned all my money is going to other cities already and this would keep my spending much closer to the area I live in.

The casinos downtown probably do not want the competition but I am not a slot player I am a horse player and this would give me a reason to visit your city on a regular basis.

Since I am not into strip clubs I do not currently spend much money in Romulus. A new racetrack would give your city a new image and a new symbol of recognition.

cially pleased to lend my support for a "Yes" vote for the proposed racetrack and casino in Romulus. Having worked there for more than 26 years, I've seen Romulus grow from a rural bedroom community to the striving metropolis that it has become and can only see the good that added jobs, tax base and tourists that those projects will bring. My only regret is that they're not coming to Inkster.

So I urge voters to vote yes for Romulus and the greater western Wayne County area.

Dr. Terrel M. LeCesne,
Inkster

Councilman supports race track

To the editor,
These are difficult times in Romulus. Many residents in our community are losing their jobs and their homes. Michigan's budget deficit is over $900 million and Romulus, like communities across the state, is facing drastic cuts in funding.

Romulus needs jobs and revenue, and we need them now. We have the opportunity on Tuesday, Dec. 2, to do something about these pressing needs. I believe Proposal 2 -- the racetrack proposal -- is our best and quickest catalyst for economic development, revenue growth and jobs. Once our city administrative process is completed, Magna Entertainment Corp. project at the northeast corner of Wick and Vining Roads can be operational in just 18 months!

The project Magna wants to build now in our community will create thousands of good jobs and generate millions of dollars for our city and schools. It is estimated that once the project is built, Magna's payments to Romulus will equal around $875 per year per household in Romulus.

As many of you know already, I have publicly stated my support for the Magna project after studying this opportunity very carefully. I know that Magna is committed to the communities in which it locates. Those communities have experienced the benefits of world-wide recognition. We have patiently waited for an opportunity of this magnitude for two decades. While I am impressed with the benefits projected by proponents of the casino, there is no question that we, the citizens of Romulus, will see the equally attractive benefits of the Magna mixed-use development much sooner and with far more certainty.

I have personally discussed this proposal with fellow citizens, and many believe that passing Proposal 2 is critical to the future of our town. The time to do something about jobs and revenue is now. It is with heartfelt confidence I believe the Magna project can provide the level of employment, economic growth and recognition our community needs to become full and vibrant. Voting yes on Proposal 2 Dec. 2 will provide the first opportunity for growth in our city in the past 20 years.

Charles R. Miller,
Romulus City Councilman

budgets, even if Plymouth Township isn't among those municipalities.

The process used by the township is, in essence, a good one. They rely on a merit commission that uses other communities as a bench mark. The commission is an appointed one, but relatively independent of the township board itself, if last Tuesday's vote is any indicator.

The pay increases automatically go into effect unless the two-thirds of the township board votes against them. The board must also act on them within 30 days of the recommendation of the merit commission, which this time took place on Nov. 10. That's why a desire to have the item put off until next month, when the whole board is present, wasn't approved. The board of trustees won't meet, unless they call a special meeting, before then.

Is there a way to handle the situation better? Perhaps. The state legislature had a similar policy before Thad McCotter, then a state senator, sponsored legislation that effectively turned it around. A two-thirds majority is now required to approve a pay raise, not reject it. The township could visit something like that.

Or it might simply be a matter of more effective time management, making sure the recommendation comes down at a time when the board will have more than one opportunity to act on it.

The current policy is a good one, and addresses most of the areas likely to raise concerns. A few minor changes would make it all that much better.

Arts group seeking former senior building

Scott Spielman
Editor

The Senior Citizens program in Northville may have outgrown the old Senior Citizens facility on Cady Street, but a number of other organizations have an interest in the future use of the site.

The Northville Arts Commission (NAC) became the latest community group to express an interest in the former scout building, which is just west of the Northville Post Office.

At a recent meeting of the Parks and Recreation Commission, the NAC outlined a brief proposal for an artistic use for the 1,200-square-foot structure.

"It would be a perfect place for an art center," said Ken Naigus, chairperson of the NAC. "There's a lot of demand. We would provide for a wide range of interests."

He said he envisioned the structure as a headquarters for the NAC, which doesn't have a permanent home. They would sponsor art classes, art shows and provide a space for poetry classes and readings and drama classes, much like the Joanne Winkelman Center for the Arts provides a home base for the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC).

"We think it's a great space," Naigus said. "We don't really have a permanent home."

Traci Sincock, director of Northville Parks and Recreation, said other groups have expressed an interest in the site, too. Recently members of the Northville Youth Advisory Council (YAC) presented a proposal to boards like the school board, city council and township board of trustees for the site. They would use it as an after school teen hangout, sort of like a permanent clubhouse for teens.

"It's always nice to see really unique projects come out of a proposal like this," Sincock said.

The building currently houses the senior citizen's program, but the Northville Community Center is in the beginning phases of a renovation that will transform it into a larger center for seniors, as well as the rest of the community. The building on Cady Street isn't up to modern handicapped-accessible codes – the 1,200 square feet of space in the building is split into two floors only accessible by a stairway.

"It's a very challenging space," Sincock said.

Brad Werner, a township trustee who also sits on the parks and recreation commission, said he would like to investigate the possibility of sharing the building. One group could use the upper floor and another, the lower, he said.

"My first thought was that any time you get a group of teens together, you need some adult supervision," he said. "Maybe they could work out an agreement."

Naigus said it was an idea that the NAC had discussed as well. He said he had listened to the proposal from the youth commission, too.

"A number of things they're interested in are art-related," he said. "It's possible that we could help out in those areas."

The decision will ultimately be made by the Northville City Council, however. The City of Northville owns the building. Sincock said some private parties had expressed an interest, as well, and she would probably send out a Request For Proposals (RFP) on the site so city council members could make a decision on the best use of the building.

Holiday memorial service set

Meghan Chatham
Staff Writer

Christmas, with family gatherings, visits from Santa Claus, and manger scenes, is frequently associated with children, which makes it a particularly difficult time for families that have lost children to accidents or illness.

In an effort to remember children who have died, Compassionate Friends of Livonia will participate in the 2003 Worldwide Candle Lighting Ceremony beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14 in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth

"We want the world to know that our kids live on. We haven't forgotten them," said Chapter Leader Pat O'Donnell, who joined the group after the death of his 18-year-old son.

According to the Compassionate Friends web site, the Worldwide Candle Lighting ceremony takes place every year on the second Sunday in December. The lighting occurs at 7 p.m. in every time zone, one area after the other.

"It is absolutely international," said O'Donnell. "The whole world is lit up for at least a day."

Even the U.S. Senate gets involved. O'Donnell said that for the past several years, the Senate has approved a resolution officially recognizing the second Sunday in December as National Children's Memorial Day.

The Kellogg Park ceremony, which will feature a short program designed to help families cope with the empty chair at holiday gatherings, will begin at 6:30 p.m.

"For us, there is this huge hole that needs to be filled, and it will not be filled the way we want it," said O'Donnell.

When the candles are lit at 7 p.m., the names of the children being memorialized will be read.

"We probably read off 350 kids' names (each year)," said O'Donnell. He added that the ceremony, which he said the club has celebrated for about five years, generally draws more than 500 people, both family and friends of the lost children.

In addition, a tree filled with ornaments bearing the children's names will be on display. Anyone interested in helping to prepare the ornaments should meet at St. Timothy's Church, located on the east side of Newburg Road just south of Six Mile Road, at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 1.

According to O'Donnell, the ceremony can help survivors cope with their grief.

"Initially, I didn't want to go. It is a forced recognition (of the child's death.) ...But just going out is helpful. To hear your child's name is part of the recognition that things will never be the same," said O'Donnell.

For more information on the Compassionate Friends of Livonia, or to register your child's name for recognition during the candle-lighting ceremony, call the Compassionate Friends at 734-788-0800. For more information, visit the web site at www.tcflivonia.org. The group meets from 7 to 9 p.m. on the first Wednesday of every month at St. Timothy's Presbyterian Church, located on Newburg Road, just south of Six Mile Road.

Don't be Fooled!

● Romulus loses BIG with Proposal 1 & 2

Romulus will NOT get the same deal as Detroit. The proposed gambling facilities have NOT made the same kind of commitment to this community. Romulus gets more crime and more traffic, but none of the benefit.

There is NO commitment to create jobs for those living in our community.

There is NO commitment to provide Romulus with our FAIR share of gaming revenue.

● Crumbs off the table

While Detroit gets 10 percent of casino revenues, Romulus will get next to nothing. The owners of the proposed casino will give our community less than 2 percent while the owners of the race track will give even less money. That's not a good deal for Romulus. We get all the headaches while the casino owners keep all the cash.

● No guaranteed local jobs

Sure, they say that the casino and racetrack will create jobs, but those are just promises, and that's not good enough for us.

In most towns, the proposed casino owners guarantee in a written contract that a certain percentage of jobs would go to local residents, but there no such guarantee with either of these proposals. In fact, in Detroit, the casinos have a contract with the city to give 50 percent of the jobs to Detroit residents. We have nothing to ensure that Romulus residents get a single job with the proposed casino or racetrack.

● NO local control

A Native American tribe would own the proposed casino. That means no local government oversight, and the casino will not have to pay property taxes. Romulus will have little or no control over the casino.

The company that wants to bring a horse racetrack to Romulus is based out of Toronto, Canada. Again, this company has no local connection and is not committed to this community. In fact, the profits for this casino will head back to Toronto, with almost nothing staying here to help our local government.

● Teenagers will be able to gamble legally in Romulus!

The proposal that allows casino gaming in the city of Romulus includes a provision that could allow teenagers to gamble. If this proposal passes, at 18 while our kids are still in high school, our sons and daughters might be able to walk into a Romulus casino and gamble, just like adults. At the racetrack, they could gamble when they turned 18.

Basically, at 18, they're still kids. Yet, unless we take action to stop gambling in our city, these 'kids' will be able to legally gamble in our city. Let's not let our kids gamble with their lives!

● This is just a BAD bet! Romulus gets nothing from Proposals 1 & 2!

Romulus gets more crime and more traffic, but none of the benefit. Proposal 1 & 2 is just not good enough. There's no guarantee of jobs for people who live here, and we'll get next to nothing in casino revenue. It's nothing more than a rip off for Romulus. That's why you should vote NO on Proposals 1 & 2.

Vote NO December 2 on Proposals 1 & 2. It's a bad bet for Romulus!

BUSINESS

Back to work 'Retired' hair stylist returns with new salon

Heather Connor
Staff Writer

A full retirement just wasn't in the cards for Denny Idrizi.

After more than 30 years of experience as a hairdresser, Idrizi decided to sell his hair salon in Westland earlier this year. But he soon set his sights on a small building for sale on Main Street in Belleville, and an idea for a new start in his beloved profession set in.

"I don't think I'm ready to retire," Idrizi said. "Only when I cut hair do I feel comfortable, like myself. Behind the chair is the best place for me."

Idrizi said he has regularly visited friends in Belleville for the past 20 years and has enjoyed the beautiful atmosphere of the city. He had noticed the building next door to city hall back in the 1980s and thought it would make a great location for a salon.

When Idrizi noticed the building for sale this past summer, he said he thought this would be his chance to make his vision a reality. He opened Denny's Hair Salon at 36 Main St. earlier this month.

Barbers are not offered a pension when they retire, Idrizi said, and he sees the salon as an investment in his future. Now that Idrizi is financially secure, he said he was ready to take on a new challenge. He also said he looks forward to enjoying recreation on Belleville Lake next summer.

"I think Belleville is like a hidden town, kept secret for many years," Idrizi said. "Everyone has been very helpful and very kind."

Belleville is a growing community and is in need of an upscale salon, Idrizi said. Many people travel away from their hometown to get their hair done, he said, and Belleville residents need to have a choice in salons, just as they have a choice in where they buy their food or enjoy a meal.

"A business with a good name, whether it is another salon or a restaurant, will help to bring business to the street," Idrizi said.

Idrizi said he has won seven trophies from hair-styling shows from around the area. He has won five trophies from the state, Denny Idrizi (center) cuts the ribbon on his new hair salon in Belleville. The salon, located next to city hall on Main Street, opened earlier this month.

one from Chicago and one from Toronto. One of his stylists has also won a trophy. Idrizi said he plans to offer the experience of high-caliber hair stylists for reasonable prices.

"I am bringing to Belleville my 30 years of experience in styling," Idrizi said.

Denny's Hair Salon also offers a barber shop and styling facilities for both men and women. The salon hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. For more information or to make an appointment call Denny's Hair Salon at (734) 697-4485.

Canton New Year celebration set

Sharon Emeigh
Staff Writer

Tickets are now available for the New Years Eve celebration in Canton Township. Canton Leisure Services has organized the event for the past seven years at Summit on the Park.

The evening will begin at 7 at Summit on the Park with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, according to Rosemary Globke, coordinator of the banquet and conference center for leisure services.

The party is for adults only, according to Globke. A deluxe bar will be open from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m. Local Canton DJ, Silver Sounds, will provide musical entertainment throughout the night.

Also, there will be a champagne toast at the stroke of midnight.

Leisure Services would like to encourage attendees to get their tickets early, Globke said. In order to ensure that those who attend have a good time that is not too crowded, the event will be limited to 200 people, she added.

So, until Nov. 29, Canton residents can purchase tickets for $80 per guest. Non-residents can purchase tickets for $85 per guest. In December, the price goes up to $90 for anyone who would like to attend the festivities.

Tickets can be purchased over the phone with a Visa or MasterCard by calling the banquet and conference center at 734-394-5487 or in person at the banquet and conference center at the Summit on the Park from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

School officials ponder bond option

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

Members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education could only scratch their heads and shrug their shoulders after the bond steering committee presented their final report during a special meeting last Tuesday night – not because they were confused, but because they knew that they would have a very difficult decision to make in the next few months.

How large a bond issue, if any at all, should – and could – the community be asked to support? That is the question the board members now face.

The committee presented an extensive 46-page report with additional appendices that included all three Vision Planning Session presentations, a facility study update, special education data, technology report, housing and enrollment data, athletic facility usage, bus replacement plan, middle school educational specifications, new middle school supporting data and middle school renovation supporting data.

“I have never seen a report with this kind of depth,” board president Judy Mardigian said. “The committee has done an outstanding job.”

The main portion of the report dealt with two main topics: facility needs and facility wants. The report listed 38 “needs,” which included such things as; site drainage improvements, sump pumps and roof repairs to protect infrastructure; upgrade of domestic and storm water systems to meet current state and federal codes; and the replacement of carpet, chalkboards, kitchen equipment, stage curtains, water heaters and boilers required to meet board of education and administrative educational goals and objectives and replacement plans.

Although no final costs or decisions have been made, the report illustrates that, if the board decided to fulfill all of the needs listed in the report, it could cost the community as much as $91.4 million and an additional $235,000 in operating costs for new unit ventilators, including air conditioning.

The “wants” list added an additional 40 items that would, according to the report, make upgrades to “make everyday educational experience easier, more comfortable (e.g. storage, AC, arc.),” and meet “physical needs of students (e.g. covered walk ways between the high schools).” Other “want” items included: new play equipment, window replacement, landscape upgrades, lighting upgrades, expansion of the elementary schools to regain art and music rooms and athletic field upgrades.

Again, no final numbers or decisions have been made by the board members, however, if they fulfilled the entire “wants” list it would add another $99.7 million to the bond issue. That doesn’t include the possible new elementary and middle school options.

The bond committee provided enrollment projections, based on numbers from Stanfred Associates, which showed a possible increase of 755 students in the next five years. From there, they presented a financial comparison between the construction of a new elementary school with a capacity of 750 students to the cost of expanding existing schools.

The cost to the community to build a new elementary school would be about $13.7 million, which includes $1.2 million paid for property that would be returned to the district fund balance if the bond is approved within three years of the property purchase. The cost to expand five existing schools is approximately $12.5 million, according to the committee report. The operating costs for a new school were slightly lower, $715,000, opposed to $1.2 million for the expansion option.

The quandary and issue which prompted the most debate was the question of renovating Central Middle School or building new middle school and using Central for an alternative purpose.

“This was one of the most emotional areas of discussion,” said Ken Jacobs, one of the tri-chairs of the bond committee “We looked at as much as we could and provided the best numbers as possible.”

The committee devised four options for Central. Option A would renovate Central and continue use as a middle school; Pioneer, East and West middle schools would also be renovated; a staff development center would be included; Starkweather and Tanger would also be renovated.

Options B, C and D would all incorporate a new middle school; renovation of Pioneer, East and West middle schools; include a staff development center and use Tanger as a magnet school.

The differences are: B would renovate Central to move Starkweather and the school board offices in and sell those existing buildings. Option C would renovate Central, move Starkweather in, eliminate the pool and use the gym for non-gym purposes and sell the existing Starkweather building. Option D calls for the renovation of Central and maintaining the pool and gym areas, move Starkweather in and sell the existing building. The costs for the different options range from $30.7- $40.7 million.

“We could not come to a consensus for one course of action to take,” said Jeff Grimes, a tri-chair member of the bond committee. “We recommend that the board do some further digging and research on the matter.”

Board members and Superintendent of Schools Dr. Jim Ryan were impressed with the amount of work that the committee did on the report and the amount of information that they provided.

“I think the committee was very creative in presenting some of the issues,” said Ryan. “They took some of the emotion out of some emotional topics. This report will be an invaluable source for the board as to whether it will need to consider a bond issue.”

How much of a bond, if one is needed, will be too much for the public to approve? That is still the tough decision the board will have to make.

“It comes down to what the community will support,” Mardigian said. “Ultimately, that is what it comes down to.”

“I have never seen a report with this kind of depth. The committee has done an outstanding job.”
Judy Mardigian

Holiday Taste Fest planned

Theresa Wherrett
Staff Writer

Local residents looking for a delicious way to begin the holiday season may want to stop by the 2003 Holiday Taste Fest, scheduled for 6 until 9 p.m. Dec. 2 at the Hellenic Cultural Center, 36375 Joy Road.

Selections from area restaurants and culinary artists will be available for patrons to sample, according to Westland Chamber of Commerce President Lori Brist. Participating restaurants include the Michigan Star Clipper Dinner Train, Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe, The Stick Café, the William D. Ford Career Tech Center and Toarmina's Pizza, among others.

In addition on gourmet fare, festival attendees can silently bid on art offered by professional artists and Wayne-Westland students. Pam Rossi, a disc jockey from WCSX. 94.7 FM radio, will make a special appearance.

Tickets are available in advance at the Westland Chamber of Commerce or may be purchased at the door. Adult tickets are $20; senior and student tickets are $15. All proceeds will go to the Joseph Benyo Scholarship Fund and the Westland Chamber of Commerce.

Inkster plans annual Christmas ceremony

Molly Tippen
Staff Writer

Despite budget cuts endured by the parks and recreation department earlier this year, the City of Inkster Annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony will happen on schedule.

Parks and Recreation Director Ron Wolkowicz said Friday that 11th-hour meetings with representatives from the Summerfest Committee and the Zeta Phi Beta and Alpha Kappa Alpha sororities resulted in a plan to provide funding and in-kind contributions to keep the 30-year-tradition going.

"It wasn't in the budget; (the cuts meant) something had to go," Wolkowicz said. "But community groups have stepped up to help us out. A couple of sororities and the Summerfest Committee have pledged to help us with funds and volunteers."

He added that normally, in years where city finances haven't been as tight, the plans for the tree lighting were under way sooner. Currently, parks and recreation employees and department of public works employees are busily working to put plans and decorations into place.

"Public service has promised that the decorations will be up in time for the ceremony," Wolkowicz added.

The tree lighting is a 30-year tradition that has never been cancelled, Wolkowicz said. Specific plans for carolers and music are still being determined and should be confirmed by the Thanksgiving holiday, Wolkowicz added. In the past, area church choirs have preformed for onlookers.

After the lighting of the tree, Santa will officially arrive to greet Inkster children. Each child will have an opportunity to tell Santa what they'd like to see in their stockings this Christmas. Hot chocolate, cookies and other refreshments will be provided. Santa will be available for photo opportunities for parents who want to bring a camera.

"We're in the process of sending flyers to the schools to let people know (about the ceremony)," Wolkowicz said. "We hope parents and children will come out."

The City of Inkster Annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony will take place at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3 in front of city hall at 2121 Inkster Road.

Soon to wed

Blauwkamp - Woody

Julie Francisca Blauwkamp and David Michael Woody will be married early next year.

The bride to be is the daughter of Leonard and Caroline Baluwkamp of Grand Rapids.

She is a graduate of Calvin College where she earned her bachelor's degree in social work.

She is employed as a social worker.

The future groom is the son of Dave Woody of Belleville and Jan Woody of Wayne.

He earned his bachelor of science degree in chemistry at Hope College and is employed as a chemist.

A Feb. 21, 2004 wedding date has been set.

Memorial services set

Vermeulen Funeral homes in Plymouth and Westland and Crane Funeral Home in Romulus have scheduled memorial candle lighting services.

The public is invited to the memorial tributes to loved ones and there is no charge.

A special presentation, Handling the Holidays is planned which is designed to help with grief during the holiday season.

In Plymouth, the ceremony is scheduled for 7 p.m. Dec. 10 and in Westland, the event will be at 6 p.m. Dec. 14. In Romulus, the event will be at 7 p.m. Monday.

Reservations are suggested and may be made at (734) 459-2250 for Plymouth or Westland and (734) 941-9200 for Romulus.

Canton Chiefs roll over Rocks in district championship

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

The Canton Chiefs were crowned district champions and moved on to the regional playoffs with a 43-22 victory over neighboring rivals the Salem Rocks Friday night.

Junior center Katie Cezat recorded a double-double with 20 points and 13 rebounds to lead the Chiefs in the championship game. Rachele Guastella netted 10 and Becky Houdek added eight while Lisa Ealy nabbed eight rebounds.

It was a night of redemption for Cezat and the Chiefs as the Rocks shut them both down in the conference championship game on Nov. 13. Salem won that game 41-28.

"It was two different games with two different teams," said Canton Coach Bob Blohm. "In the conference game they played a zone defense and we had a difficult time getting the ball inside. This time we were a little more patient on offense and had good shots and made them."

The Chiefs knocked down 16 points, which included six from the line, in the first quarter and added another eight in the second. Canton held the Rocks to only seven points in the first half.

The second half was closer but the damage was done. Canton outscored Salem 18-16 to bring home the district trophy with a 43-22 triumph.

The Chief's defense was outstanding as they held the hot hands of Salem's Alyssa Guerin and Ellen Canale to a combined 10 points as opposed to the 34 they scored in the conference championship.

"We knew that we couldn't let Guerin and Canale score," Blohm said. "Basketball is a game of shots — we made them this time and they didn't. Salem had good first shots but didn't get rebounds and take second shots. We were able to do that. It was just the opposite of the conference game."

Canton's road to regional play started with a bye in the first round of districts last Monday night, which led to a tough match up against the host South Lyon High School last Wednesday.

Canton pulled out a tight 46-43 win which pushed them into the district championship game.

Ealy and Cezat each scored 15 points against South Lyon and Guastella added eight.

The Chiefs trailed through most of the first half where they were down by five at the end of the first but rallied in the second to bring them within one at 20-19.

"The end of the second and the beginning of the third were really key for us," Blohm said. "It shows that the girls can be down in a big game and be able to come back."

Canton outscored South Lyon the rest of the way to win the game and head to the finals.

The Chiefs headed to Avondale High School in Auburn Hills on Monday night to face off against West Bloomfield in the first round of Region 6A competition. Due to holiday deadline schedules the scores were not available for this edition.

"We're happy to be playing right now," Blohm said. "It's a tough region and West Bloomfield is an outstanding team. But, we've been playing well on defense and rebounding well and we've had balanced scoring, it should be a good match up."

"We're just happy to be playing still," he added.

"We've accomplished two out of three of our goals — we won our division and districts — it was a good thing for these girls."

The Plymouth Whalers lost to the Erie Otters 6-5 in overtime after blowing a 4-1 first-quarter lead.

Whalers flounder in overtime, lose 6-5

Jeff Novak

The Plymouth Whalers have suffered from slow starts all season but have managed to fight back and either win or tie most of those games. However, Saturday night was a different story as the Whalers blew a 4-1 first-period lead to lose to the Erie Otters 6-5 in overtime.

Jonas Fiedler started the Whalers out right with their first goal. Vaclav Meidl fired a shot, the Erie goaltender let the rebound go and Fiedler nailed it home at 12:30. Tim Sestito added a short-handed goal off of an assist from Mike Letizia to extend the Whalers' lead to 2-0. The Erie Otters countered with a power-play score from Michael Blunden to make it a 2-1 game with 4:20 left to play in the first period.

John Vigilante added another one for Plymouth on a power play to go up 3-1. Ryan Ramsay and James Wisniewski recorded the assists. Wisniewski contributed another power-play goal with 15 seconds left in the period. Ramsay and John Mitchell were credited with the assists.

Plymouth hit for another power-play goal to start the second period. Gino Pissellini recorded the goal and Ramsay and Wisniewski made the assists to make it 5-1. However, Erie put up three goals in a three-and-half minute span to get back into the game. Sean O'Conner scored first followed by Ryan O'Marra and Alex Karaulchuck to bring the Otters to within one with a 5-4 score at the end of the second period.

The Otter's Mike Melinko continued the scoring spree in the third period to tie the game 5-5 with less than five minutes left to play.

The Whalers were unable to get things going and the game was pushed into overtime.

Chris Campoli, on a power play, scored Erie's fifth straight goal to take home the 6-5 victory.

The Whalers will host the Windsor Spitfires tonight at the Compuware Sports Arena in Plymouth and hopefully be thankful for a win when they travel to the Sarnia Sting on turkey day. They will finish out the holiday weekend play Saturday night when they host

Eagles stunned, lose to Cougars, 62-44

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

Things don't always turn out the way they should. And they didn't for the Romulus Eagles when they fell 62-44 to Garden City in the Class A district playoffs last Wednesday night.

The Eagles went 18-2 in the regular season and played their hearts out against Dearborn for the Mega White Division championship two weeks ago.

They played the Wayne Memorial Zebras last Monday in the first round of district competition and won 53-41, before moving onto round two against the Garden City Cougars.

The Cougars lost to Romulus twice during the season and fought hard to not make it a third time.

Romulus had a 10-6 lead in the first quarter but Garden city nailed a two-pointer at the buzzer to narrow the gap.

The Eagles had a hard time getting the ball through the hoop and they couldn't get the offensive rebounds that they are used to in the second quarter. They only recorded eight points while the Cougars nailed 19 to take a 27-18 lead at the half.

"We missed 36 two-point shots in the game, which is not normal for us — that's 72 points — if we make half of those it's not even a game," Romulus coach Rhonda McAllister said. "Some nights they just don't fall, for us, it just happened to be during districts."

"Everything that we wanted to do on defense went down the drain when they got in the lead," she added. "Going into the game we were focused on shutting down Garden City's center Lindsay Sletermier. Once they took the lead we had to move the defense out which isolated her — it's not what we wanted. After the first quarter we played with our backs to the wall."

Sletermier led the Cougars with 24 points.

Garden City outscored the Eagles again 15-11 in the third quarter and led 42-15 to start the fourth quarter.

Janiece Armstrong and Erika Mims led Romulus in the fourth quarter for a combined 13 points in the first two minutes of play. Armstrong nailed three three-pointers and Mims dropped four points to bring the Eagles within two points of the Cougars at 44-42.

"I was happy with the fourth quarter effort," McAllister said. "That's the trade mark of our team — we don't give up."

On the verge of another comeback run in the fourth quarter the Eagles stumbled over a hurdle as Garden City, led by Sletermier, scored 16 unanswered points to take a 60-42 lead with under three minutes left in the game.

Robichaud ousted by Renaissance

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

Amazingly enough, Mary Riley's 37 points didn't carry the Dearborn Heights Robichaud Bulldogs past Detroit Renaissance in a 76-55 District B girls' basketball playoff game last Wednesday night.

Scoring isn't anything new to Riley, who averaged 27.6 points per game for a total of 593 points in 21 games this season. The loss was unfortunately Riley's last game for the Bulldogs. She played varsity all four of her years at Robichaud and scored 1,506 points, according to Robichaud coach Warren Woods.

"She went out just the way she came in – doing whatever it takes to try and get us the win," he said. "They (Rennassaince) couldn't do anything against her. They double and triple teamed her but she still scored."

Riley recently signed a national letter of intent to play basketball at Syracuse University where she received a four-year full scholarship.

In Wednesday's game Robichaud was outscored 18-8 in the first quarter by a bigger and more powerful Renaissance team. But, like every game, the Bulldogs fought to the end. In the second quarter they battled back to outscore Renaissance 22-17 and narrowed the gap to 35-30 at the halfway point.

"They had a size advantage. They were a big team," Woods said. "But we played hard all the way through to make up for the lack of size."

Renaissance used their size and capitalized on turnovers in the first three minutes of the third quarter and pulled away with a 60-46 lead, he said. The 14-point lead was too much to overcome in the fourth quarter where the Bulldogs were outscored 16-9 to end the game 76-55.

"They just had too many weapons," Woods said. "They had a lot of depth – the girls that came off the bench were just as good as the starters were."

"I couldn't be more proud of my girls, though," he added. "They played hard – I didn't expect anything less than 150 percent, because they give that all of the time. That's all a coach can ask for."

Senior Shakira Patillo added eight points for Robichaud. The Bulldogs will lose seniors Riley, Patillo, Shanika Bodden and Whitney Renfroe to graduation this year.

"All of the girls here played their role on this team," Woods said. "They all made sacrifices for the team. It's impossible to replace someone like Mary (Riley). Everything that we do next year will have to be by committee. I just hope some of the younger players learned from her – her work ethic and the type of person that she is."

Tigers fall to Rockets, lose 35-32 in district playoffs

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

The Belleville Tigers fought tooth and nail but they couldn't pull off the victory against the John Glenn Rockets last Wednesday in the District A playoff game. The Rockets snared the Tigers, 35-32, in a battle that was fought to the end.

After drawing a bye in the first round, the rested Tigers came on strong against a fired up Rockets team that blasted Franklin 37-30 last Monday in their opening playoff game.

Freshman Taylor Manley and Tia Lewis were the only Tigers to score in the first quarter. Manley knocked down five points and Lewis nailed two three-pointers to take an 11-9 lead to start the second quarter.

Like most of their season, Belleville was up and down offensively throughout the game. They scored only six points in the second, which allowed the Rockets to take 21-17 advantage into the second half.

"Like I've said before, that's been the story of our season," said Belleville coach Kevin Edwards. "The girls played hard all the way through. I thought that they played well defensively, but we just couldn't find the basket when we needed to."

The Tigers found the basket in the second half and outscored John Glenn 15-14 in the last two quarters to keep within four points the rest of the game. But it was too little too late and the Rockets held on to a three-point lead in the final minutes to finish Belleville off 35-32.

This was only the second time that the two teams met this year. The Tigers and the Rockets faced off in the first game of the season where Belleville won by an eight-point margin.

"It was a good rematch," said John Glenn coach Mike Schuette. "I knew it would be a tight game going into it. One of my top players, Jennifer Thauvette, was ill and sat most of the second quarter, so that didn't help.

"Their number 34 (Tia Lewis) is pretty good and I thought that we did a good job on her," he added.

John Glenn freshman Brandi Jones led all scorers with 12 points on the night.

The youthful Tigers should improve next year with freshmen Manley and Denica Holmes gaining an entire year of varsity action before they become sophomores.
